THE EMANCIPATION OF LABOR.

Before American independence was declared and when the English imposts were so burdensome that they could no longer be endured, our forefathers rebelled and susunned their revolt by force of arms. When negro slavery became so arrogant and oppresure as to arouse public sentiment in the North it was abolished at the point of the bayonet after one of the most desperate wars in history. And now the country is in the throes of another struggle for human rigids. It is a peaceful contest for the councipation of labor, which is conducted in the interest of liberty as much as were the two great events of American history, and victory will finally be won through the influence of organization One of the forms of this emancipotion is the absortion of aweat shop labor.

For years many of our great cities have been dispraced by the swenting system. Teremonia, lovels, basements, and other places of the prest have swarmed with men, omen, and children employed in the tunns facture of eleting, whose treatment, pay, and environments place them little above a condition of slavery. Organized labor has in some eitles entirely endicated this blot on our social system, but in New York, Haltimore, and a few other places it still remains as a reproach to the vigilance of law, for the statutes of nearly every State in the Union probling awent shops,

In New York yesterday 1,800 women and more than 10,000 men tailors struck for the adoption of an agreement which shall probible the making of a central with employers who deal in sweat sliep If this is not using the power of organization to eradicate a crying exil, then the armies of our patriot forefathers and of the war of the rebellion were modelized in valu. For while the award whom slavery is not no extensive as were the burdens that brought on the Iwo as ernet and appressive to those whom

May the tailors succeed as they undly will. It is reported that several of the enstern tailors in this city wend their garments to the away shops of Baltimore to be monufactured. Surely this is wrong. Washington has competent craftsmen who need this Work and it should never be sent to a awant shop. The Tailors' Assembly beer might do a little mission ary work as have their brethren in New York, and it is to be forsed that in future all struzzles for the rights of labor may be conducted as peacefully as the one just commenced against the sweat shops of

ONE OF OUR SMELL MARKS.

Not without and me the fact that our beautiful city has made great progress and has outgrown most of itsold land marks, ancient enstoms and antiquated methods, we still permit one concern to thrive that is too old, too obnexious and too great a misance to as to smell of aged iniquity, of a cotruption the never counting effluence will patrify anything not longer dead than itself. In all other advanced cities this rank, horrible must-prisoner, has long since given place to smodern reduction systems, and why Patsy Mann's sendering establishment should yet remain to taint the atmosphere is a commdrum none but the Commissioners can

There are things londer than noises, more noxious than putrefaction, more expressive than words, more personsive than argument, and if the health officer and Commissuppers would follow their reses to Giesbore Point they would scent out a way to get rid of that rendering nuisance, If all the smells of Patsy Mann's cavern could be gathered in the clouds, an aeralisland would be formed that would be follows: deep enough and broad enough to bury the sine of the world, and, like them, it would represent the foulest mass of corruption that human most can comprehend Now let the city be rid of this nuisance Its system of disposing of defunct animals is way behind the times. It is a pestilence breeder, and should be done away with as soon as possible. It is a landmark, as well as a smell-mark, that Washington can afford to dispense with.

CEMETERIES IN SPAIN.

Senator Dubois, of Idaho, is one of those wild, rampaging individuals who imrders Indians in his sleep and hitches tomahawks to his language. He halls from a country where settlers shoot redskins to get up a breakfast appetite, and as he is soon to stand for re-election he has been concoming some dead "Injun" talk. He says. speaking of the Bannock massacre:

"This trouble would not have occured but for the unloading of a carpet bag Indian agent on us named Teeter. Now Teeter is afraid of an Indian, and perhaps it is a good thing to mistrust them 'till you get onto their tricks. But there will be no war or anything like one (more's the pity), por do I believe there has been. The troops will get there, the braves will promptly submit and be taken back to their reservations, and there the matter will end for a time. A. little later the same Indians will be off the reservation slaughtering game again. It caunot be otherwise as long as inexperienced men such as Tester are appointed as Indian negative And yet there are people who blame the whites for taking matters in their own hands. The extermination of the whole lazy, suiftless, non-supporting tribe of Ban-pocks would not be any very great loss." It is claimed that Senator Dubois wants the Republican nomination for Vice President, and nothing could be more timely than this interview. This country has never had the unspeakable pleasure of electing a wind giant to one of its highest offices, and with the nomination the Indian-eating Senator would bring a cyclone of glory and a tremendious reputation for Indian cemeteries

Had Scrator Dubois lived in the days of Cooper he would have far outstripped in reputation any of that novelist's Indian killers. As a character be would have outranked in notoriety the sockless Congress man from Kansas, and would probably have been known in history as the leather-fringed statesman of Hog Hollow. It is uscless however, to include in regrets for this misfortune, or to envy the Senator his belt of scalp locks. No one could wear them with such exquisite word jingle, and on any other here they would cease to bleed gore. In pure Bunnock warery let us say, Vale defunctus "Injin." Dubois is after you.

LIBRARY FOR WORKINGMEN.

Rev. Dr. Byron Sunderland, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, who has been acting the gospel in this city for over forty-two years, is enthusiastically in favor of the proposed free library and labor intelligence bureau for working men.

"I have neticed your advocacy of two most commendable objects, and heartily rodorse them," he says in a letter to The

"To establish a free library," he contimes, "for the larger number of people who are virtually cut off from privileges enjoyed by the more fortunate class would which benefits inestmable would surely

"Your suggestion that a free labor in telligence bureau be connected wit hihe library is a good one, and might open opportunities for the unemployed which many of them would gladly embrace

"I wish you would set forth the plan in full detail for the information of the public, and I hope our other papers will join you in so noble an enterprise."

Dr. Sunderland's advocacy of these schemes is exceedingly timely and valuable. He knows the needs of the working population of Washington, and has never hesitated to lend a willing and helpful hand in any effort calculated to supply them.

Another well-known clergyman, Rev. E. S. Todd, D. D., pastor of Hamline M. E. Church, writes as follows:

"During my residence in Baltimore I had opportunity to know of the great value of the Enoch Pratt free library, with its branches in several parts of the city. be farried in the past. It is so venerated If the provement of The Times in this direction could result in anything half so effective for all classes in Warhington, I am certain that not only the books in the library would be read, but also the pages of the journal that advocated the move

PREJUDICIAL CROAKING.

Inasmuch as an effort has been made to discount the opinion of Attorney Thomas, and make it appear that he cannot do otherwise than interpret the law on letting contracts other than as against the request of the Federation of Labor for the maximum rate of wages, it might be well to examine the law from a labor standpoint, and also to remember that, sometimes, good cases are defeated by ill-advised newspaper croaking. That part of the law which relates to the letting of contracts reads as

"That hereafter when any repairs of streets, avenues, alleys or sewers within the District of Columbia are to be made, or when new pavements are to be made, or when new pavements are to substi-tuted in place of those worn out, new ones laid or new streets opened, sewers built or any works, the total cost of which shall exceed the sum of $1,000 notice shall be given in one newspaper in Washington and if the total cost shall exceed $5,000 then in one newspaper in each of the cities of New York, Philadelphia and Batti-more; also for one week for proposals, with full specifications as to materials le or any proportio nof the works proposed to be done, "And the lowest responsible proposal for the kind and character of pavenient or oth work, which the Conine opon, shall in all cases be no slowers shall have the right in their discretion to reject all of such proposals."

Granting, as argued, that proposals were for having only destrable men nominated for local, kinde, and national offices, regardless of party affiliations, but above all to break up the rule of the ringsters in the ancient and honorate city.

It is said to have attained considerable strength already, but nothing definite as those for the low far it has grown can be made definitely known, as each member is sworn not | rate of wages they could govern their bids

accordingly. A newspaper that tries to throw cold water on an effort to compel contractors to pay a uniform rate of wages is not worthy of labor support. Had it been sincere in desiring District workingmen to profit by a favorable decision, no effort would have been made to prejudice the opinion of Attorney Thomas. In any event the worst commentary on affairs in that | it would have been better to have remained silent until the question was settled rather than to discorrage workingmen by a direful

AN OPERA BOUFFE INSULT.

The whole diplomatic world is agitated by an opera bouffe insult to an American

A New Yorker named Stern is blessed with wealth and a lively son. With both he has been sojourning at Kissingen, the famous Spa in Southern Bohemia.

Herr von Thuengen, the comic opera deputy commissioner of the Spa, forbade young Stern to attend a public ball, because of his youth. The latter, being an American, could not see that his age, or want of it, barred him from terpsichorean fun, and so he danced to his heart's content, and probably to the content of some other bearts.

The offense was sufficiently serious, however, to evoke an apology from Stern pere to the outraged deputy commissioner. But the apology did not go. Mr. Stern was arrested for his son's crime. A United States consul came to his aid, but all that could be accomplished was to secure a release upon heavy bail, and on the condition that Mr. Stern should not leave his hotel even to drive or promenade. Obedience to petry officials of petry na tions is one of the luxuries open to Americans who insist on spending their money and their time abroad, and many will say that Mr. Stern has no reason to complain. However, the fact remains that an Ameri can citizen has been insulted, and vigorous action by the State Department is called for. Will it be forthcoming? England can teach us a few lessons in that respect. Holmes' Castle would probably prove a drawing card at the Atlanta Exposition.

"The Crime of the Century" has been interdicted in Sau Francisco but the "Crime of "73" is still in rehearsal.

Senator Gorman knew how it would be all the time.

Young Wanamaker probably wanted to show the Parisians how things were not done in hiladelphia.

Thomas B. Reed's silence will soon be loud enough to be heard.

Silver isn't losing ground, according to Gen. Warner. The trouble is that the ground is not losing the silver fast enough.

Jim Corbeit is now entitled to a divorce from the ring name of "Gentleman."

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE POTOMAC, W. R. C., Washington, D. C., July 29, 1895. MR. W. H. GREEGOR, Gen. Agent, C. & O. Dear Sir: I am directed by the president of Potomac Department, W. R. C., to inform you that the Department Council, by a large majority vote, this day decided to declare the Chesapeake and Ohio the official route to the national encampment at Louisville; this action is the outgrowth of the feeling that it is only right and proper that the two departments—Grand Army and Woman's Relief Corps—should travel by the same route.

You will consider this official notification of that fact.

With thanks of the council for courtesies

I am very respectfully, ISABEL WORRELL BALL, Department Secretary.

SHYLOCK BADLY BEATEN

Druggist Mertz Quickly Won From Newman, the Usurer.

GILL & CO. THE CAUSE OF IT days.

The F Street Merchant Came to the Rescue of the Candymakers and Was Sued by the Money-Lender. Justice O'Neil's Jury Speedily Reached a Decision.

That prince of shylocks, Myer B. Newman again fell into the bands of a jury yesterday in O'Neil's court, and it took them only till the roll was called to give judgment against him in one of his worst cases. In brief, Gill & Son, the F street confectioners, made two bills of sale to Newman of the face value of $35 and $65. Newman testified that the interest stipulated was 6 per cent. Mr. Gill, however, stated that they received but $45 on the $65 note and $32.50 for the smaller note; and that the second trust included the

The usual renewal fees were paid at e rate of 10 per cent, per month. Gill paid $24 in interest alone, but before the transaction was completed Newman had seized a horse and wagon and a set of harness, which together were worth $105 to Newman exclusive of the $30 which be paid for them at the forced sale.

STILL IN HIS DEBT. The $105 and the $24 in interest made $129 that Gill & Son had paid, and Newman claims that they still owe him about $80. In order to get all there was in sight Nev nan made a raid on certain property in Mr man made a raid on certain property in Air.
Gill's store some days ago with constables, wagons, and other paraphernatia. Dr.
E. V. Mertz, the well-known druggist, however, had a lien on the property and he prevented the seizure. Then Mr. Newman sued Dr. Meriz for the property.

Mr. Newman was represented by Mr. Creed M. Fulton, and Mr. Mertz by Mr. E.

A. Thomas. The latter attorney, in the course of his remarks, intimated that anycourse of his remarks, intimated that anynody who could figure and do maltiplication like Mr. Newman ough to get rich in somewhat less than ten years.

One of the witnesses for Mr. Mertz was the genial Col. Ed. Hay, who easily and politely explained that the property Newman was soing for belonged to him, Col.
Hay, and that threw a wet blanket all over the prosecution.

The property in question had been levied on and brought in by Col. Hay and he was now the owner of record, Mrs. Gill being the real owner.

JUDGE O'NEIL SMOKED Mr. Newman said that a married woman couldn't own any property and there were several specifics on this point. Judge O'Nell had nothing to do with the case and was moking quietly out on the pavement thile this was going on. In the meanwhile it was shown by Dr. Ment the headwhipe it was shown by Dr. Ment the bad a superior lieu on the property for reuf. The strong point of the defense was that the contracts and papers spoke for themselves and that Newman's case should be so decided.

Mr. T. E. Spencer was, however, forman of the pury, and they looked somewhat decider than the supers and propoled the deeper than the papers, and unrolled the tangle in a few seconds, giving judgment

The funny part of the business was that Mr. Newman said that he only got $10.50 for an $50 horse, $6 for a $22 set of harbess only amonthoid, and $6 for a $125 wagon.

PROF. MINOR DEAD.

Famous the World Over for His Works on Legal Science. (By Associated Press.) Charlottesville, Va., July 29.—John B.

Minor, LL. D., prefessor or common and statute law of the University of Virginh died at 4 o'clock this afternoon after a brief illness, aged eighty-three. Prof. Minor was born June 9, 1813, in county Louisa. His early education was acquired at Kenyon College, Ohio. Later he pursued academic and legal studies at the University of Virginia. Leaving college, he resided first in Bedford county and then in Albe-marle, at whose bar he began the practice of law with his brother, the late Lucian Minor. Mr. Minor succeeded St. George Minor. Mr. Minor succeeded St. George Tucker as professor of law at the University of Virginia in 1845, and had just completed a hair century of work for the University of Virginia and for the profession of law which has made his name an honored household word throughout Virginia, and famous among the learned men of law throughout the world, which knew him as one of the abiest expounders of legal science. He leaves a widow and five children, John B. Minor, fr., Raleigh Colston Minor, Mrs. Conway W. Sans, of Norfolk; Mrs. Wilson, of Pittsburg, and Miss Fannie Minor.

Prof. Minor's principal writings are a synopsis of the common law and stasutes of England, the United States and Virginia, and a synopsis of criminal law, all of which are used as text books at the University of Virginia. The funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

ELECTROCUTED HIS HAIR. Fire Laddies of No. 2 Company Played a Joke on Philip Oppenheimer. Philip Oppenhetmer's hair was elec-rocuted yesterday afternoon by the wags at the quarters of fire engine No. 2. He is a frequent visitor to the engine-house, and gloried only yesterday in a fine stock of the most riotors and luxuriant hair. He never came around but the boys wanted to know why he didn't have that hair cut. He eventually asked the ama teur barbers there to cut it with the hore clippers, and they consented. Oppen-heimer, probably forgetting his contract strolled around in that neighborhood yes terday, and they cought him.

They get him into a chair and tied him lows. Then they got the horse clippers and the yellow hair hopped off his head like ripe outs under the sickle. They went over the ground, so to speak, seven times and even cut out the single hair in the only bald spot on Oppenheimer's

The steamer Charles Macalester, char-tered for the occasion, will leave Seventh street wharf at 6.30 o'clock, but in order that those who wish to 'make a day of it," may do so, the association tickets will be honored on the 10.30 a, m, and 2.30 p, m, trips of the company's boats.

REGAINING THE GOLD. Flow of Yellow Metal Sets in Again Toward the Treasury. Between the close of business Saturday

ing $1,869,868. This sudden accumulation of gold attracted considerable attention, and it was supposed that it was due to some action on the part of the bond syndicate. Secretary Curtis, however, said that this was not true so far as the Treasury was advised. The increase, he said, came almost vised. The increase, he said, came aimost all in the ordinary course of business and was due to an exchange of gold for bills, prob-ably caused by the settlement of accounts in New York. The incident was, he said, not infrequent. The reserve amounted to $107,321,679.
